

Jess Phillips MP

Minister for Safeguarding and Violence Against Women and Girls
Home Office
2 Marsham Street
London, SW1P 4DF

10th January 2025

Dear Minister,

We are writing to you on behalf of Women's Aid and member services working together to fight domestic abuse to express our solidarity and sisterhood with you. We are horrified by the misogynistic and the far right attacks we've seen against you in the last week.

We know you have immense credibility for your fight for justice for women and for the voices of women to be heard against all forms of male violence. This is beyond question. We hugely respect you for your unstinting commitment to achieving real change in combatting violence against women and girls and for putting the voices of survivors at the heart of that work.

As organisations working on the ground to support survivors of domestic abuse, we know to suggest that you are dismissive of the voices of women is outrageous and untrue. We are horrified by the cynical and dangerous attacks which are clearly intended to endanger and discredit someone who champions the rights of women to be safe and live free of abuse – something you have undertaken locally as a former Victim's Champion in Birmingham, and now nationally in Parliament and in Government.

Once again, we are seeing the national emergency that is violence against women and girls (VAWG) being weaponised for political gain. These atrocious attacks do nothing to address the issue of survivors not being believed or listened to, nor to improve support for those victimised by male violence, and instead put survivors at risk of harm.

With one in four women experiencing domestic abuse in their lifetime, and at least one woman being killed every week by a current or former partner, now is the time that we need to come together and stand up against VAWG.

We stand in solidarity and sisterhood with you during this challenging time and in your Government's mission to halve VAWG, as you have done previously with countless women and children who have experienced abuse.

Yours sincerely,

Farah Nazeer, CEO, Women's Aid Federation of England
